PHOTOJOURNALIST TO LECTURE ON DOCUMENTING RURAL LIFESTYLES AT UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA

MISSOULA -

Angus McDougall, University of Montana professor emeritus and former director of the photojournalism program at the University of Missouri, will discuss "Documenting Rural Lifestyles in Missouri -- and Montana," 3-5 p.m. Thursday, April 2, in the Journalism Library at UM.

McDougall, an award-winning photojournalist, editor and author of the book "Visual Impact in Print," will also meet with journalism faculty, students and media professionals during his visit to Missoula this week.

Before he retired from the University of Missouri faculty in 1982, McDougall's photojournalism students produced five books documenting life in small towns along the Missouri River. UM photojournalism instructors Bob Cushman and Patty Reksten plan a similar student project to document rural life in Montana as part of the state's centennial observance.

McDougall's visit was made possible through a visiting scholar award from UM's Faculty Development Committee and is sponsored by UM's School of Journalism. The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call the School of Journalism at 243-4001.
